An archaeological assessment was carried out on the proposed redevelopment of the farm. The farm was surrounded by a scheduled DMV and the farmhouse was a Grade II Listed Building. The assessment identified that the development would affect the farmhouse, the barns, a dairy and a granary. Further archaeological work was recommended. [Au(abr)]

An archaeological assessment was carried out on the site. The assessment identified the site as being located within the medieval and post-medieval boundaries of the town and would have potential for medieval backplot and building related archaeology. The assessment also identified that the site has undergone a lot of the development since the 19th century and any archaeology may have been truncated. [Au(abr)]

Work undertaken by: Birmingham Archaeology

An archaeological assessment was carried out on the proposed development site and was identified as being within the bounds of the medieval town walls. It was concluded that the site had potential for Saxon, medieval and post-medieval archaeology. The assessment also identified that limited development had taken place on the site within the 19th and 20th century. [Au(abr)]
