Moore, H Reading : Thames Valley Archaeological Services, 2003, 28pp, figs, tabs, refs

Work undertaken by: Thames Valley Archaeological Services

An assessment was carried out in advance of a proposed development. The area was agricultural land until the 17th century. The site was developed piecemeal until then, and it was thought possible that heavily truncated remains from all periods could have been present. [Au(adp)]

MILTON CAMPUSArchaeological Deskbased Assessment of Land at Milton Campus, Portsmouth, Hampshire

Young, J London : L-P: Archaeology, 2003, 30pp, figs, tabs, refs

Work undertaken by: L-P: Archaeology

There was little evidence to suggest any significant prehistoric, Roman or Anglo-Saxon settlement remains in the vicinity of the site. However, documentary and cartographic evidence suggested that the site was occupied by several farm buildings and a large house during the medieval and post-medieval periods. There was a strong possibility of the survival of archaeological remains from this period on the site. [Au(abr)]
