Excavations were carried out on the development site. A settlement was identified of 9th to 12th century date, with continued occupation on a much reduced scale into the early 14th century. The settlement was possibly part of a manorial complex. Small amounts of prehistoric, Roman and early medieval finds were recovered suggestive of agricultural activity on the site prior to the 9th century settlement. [Au(abr)]

An archaeological excavation was carried out on the site prior to development. A Late Bronze Age/Early Iron Age settlement, a Late Iron Age/Conquest period settlement, a late 1st century cemetery and eleven pottery kilns were uncovered on the site. In the late 1st to early 2nd century the site returned to agricultural use before being abandoned in the Late Roman period. Evidence of a Middle Saxon settlement was identified, consisting of wells and post structures. The site reverted back to agricultural use in the medieval period. [Au(abr)]

Excavations were carried out on Monk Field Farm and Little Common Farm. At Little Common Farm, evidence was found for two field systems of Roman to Saxon date. Medieval ridge and furrow was also identified. At Monk Field Farm a Middle to Late Iron Age settlement was identified, consisting of a D shaped enclosure with internal divisions and structures. The enclosures were abandoned in the Late Iron Age and the settlement restructured. A number of pits were dated to this period. The settlement was surrounded by an Iron Age/Roman field system. Medieval ridge and furrow was also identified. [Au(abr)]
