Clarke, S Leicester : University of Leicester Archaeological Services, 2002, 14pp, figs, refs, tabs

Work undertaken by: University of Leicester Archaeological Services

The proposals concerned an area of archaeological potential, located adjacent to the Fosse Way Roman Road. Several prehistoric findspots and Roman sites have been recorded in the area. The site had previously been developed as a golf course, but the extent of earlier groundworks was unknown. Further work was recommended to determine the likely impact of the development on potential archaeological deposits. [Au(abr)]
