131 THE MOUNT, YORK131 The Mount, York. Report on an Archaeological Desk-Based Study

Evans, D York : York Archaeological Trust, 2002, 15pp, colour pls, figs, refs

Work undertaken by: York Archaeological Trust

The assessment was carried out in advance of proposals to redevelop the site. Significant remains of the Roman period, particularly in the form of burials and funerary monuments, have been found in the study area. Remains of the medieval and post-medieval have also been noted, most interestingly the Civil War fort built by the Royalists to protect the western defences of the city. It was thought likely that archaeological remains would be found, and a programme of mitigation was recommended. [Au(abr)]

THE FOSS NAVIGATION WALL, HUNGATE, YORKArchaeological Assessment. The Foss Navigation Wall, Hungate, York

Field Archaeology Specialists York : Field Archaeology Specialists, 2002, 105pp, figs, tabs, refs

Work undertaken by: Field Archaeology Specialists

An archaeological assessment was carried out on the wall in advance of a proposed mixed development. Substantial sections of the original Foss Navigatin remained upstream from the Hungate development area. There was also a section associated with the 19th century gasworks. The wall was seen to be damaged by flora. It was recommended that this be removed. [Au(abr)]
