An auger survey and the excavation of two trenches were conducted to evaluate the impact of a proposed canal and bridge. The presence of intact stratigraphic sequences and a layer of peat indicated a good potential for the recovery of in situ Neolithic and Bronze Age material. However, no archaeological materials were recovered. [AIP]

The evaluation was undertaken on test pits as part of a geotechnical investigation. With the exception of the known basement, natural geological strata was present immediately below the surface in the areas investigated. In the light of revised understanding of the archaeological potential of the site the report concludes that the impact of the proposed redevelopment is limited. [Au(abr)]
