Work undertaken by: AOC Archaeology Group

An archaeological evaluation was undertaken by AOC Archaeology in advance of proposed redevelopment of the TAVR Centre, Vicarage Lane, East Ham, London Borough of Newham, on the 25th April 2002. One trench was opened, which revealed a sequence of recent demolition rubble and subsoil, with some reworking to these deposits into the natural sub-strata by rooting. Natural brickearth was observed throughout the trench, and this overlay natural sands, which were seen in a small sondage opened at one end of the trench. No archaeological activity was noted, and no recommendations for further work have been made. [Au]
