A field evaluation was undertaken to determine if the archaeology from the nearby Clatterford Roman Villa (SM 22015) extended to an area of land to potentially be sold. A trial trench and two test pits failed to yield any archaeology. Two Roman coins were found with metal detectors in unstratified soil.[AIP]

33 targeted evaluation trenches established the presence of medieval drainage ditches that may have served as field boundaries to Hale village. Areas that appeared to be pits-type features in an earlier geophysical survey proved to be natural deposits of sand amongst the gravel and clay.[AIP]
