The evaluation was undertaken in advance of a domestic extension. A 16th century brick and mortar built well, backfilled in the 19th century, was found. The evaluation also revealed that the site had been reduced and levelled in the 19th or 20th century. [Au(abr)]

Five out of forty-five trenches contained archaeological features. A curving ditch or large pit was identified in the northern part of the site. A sherd of probable Iron Age pottery and some Bronze Age worked flint were also identified, along with an undated gully. A prehistoric post hole and gully were located in the southern area. Another area of archaeological potential was suggested, perhaps also of a prehistoric date. [Au(abr)]

ST MARY'S CHURCH, WARGRAVE

A Desk-Top Assessment, Geophysical Survey and Field Evaluation at St Mary's Church, Wargrave, Berkshire

Berkshire Archaeological Services Aldermaston : Berkshire Archaeological Services, 2002, 54pp, figs, tabs, refs

Work undertaken by: Berkshire Archaeological Services

The evaluation was carried out after a geophysical survey. None of the anomalies were identified. Sherds of late prehistoric, Roman, Saxon, medieval and post-medieval pottery were recovered. These were encountered in disturbed deposits representing the upper fills of numerous inter-cutting post-medieval graves, none of which were excavated. The finds suggested that the area of settlement around Mill Green extended across part of the application site until the 14th century, by which time the town of Wargrave had been relocated alongside the road between Reading and Henley.
