

Yellow Door Evaluations Phase 3

Information about the project

The title of our project is: An Evaluation of Yellow Door's Early Years Domestic Abuse Programme

What is the purpose of the research?

Yellow Door is running an Early Years Domestic Abuse programme which you and your child are participating in. They are working with us at Bournemouth University to do this.

The purpose of our research is to independently explore what is working well with the programme, and what needs to be improved to ensure it is having the most positive impact on the children's and adult's lives. Together with Yellow Door, we are gathering and analysing data (information) from children and adults who are participating in the programme. We want to know if the programme can make a positive difference and prevent further abuse. To do this, we want to survey the adults on the programme both before and after completion.

Why have I been invited?

You have been invited because you took part in the Early Years Domestic Abuse programme with Yellow Door. Everyone who goes on the programme is invited to take part. You will have been given a Participant Information Sheet which gives you more details about the project, and your options to take part or not. Please read that thoroughly before continuing below.

You should only complete this survey if you have undergone the Early Years Domestic Abuse programme. There is a separate survey for those who are waiting to start the programme.

The questions

All of the questions on the next pages are optional, and it should take about 10 minutes to complete this survey. Your responses are anonymous: you will not be identified or identifiable in any published results.

You must be over 16 to complete this survey. Once you have submitted your responses [online] then it will not be possible to remove them from the study because you will not be identifiable.

Contact information

The survey was designed by Dr Jane Healy, Principal Academic, Department for Social Sciences and Social Work, Bournemouth University (BU). The project was funded by Yellow Door and has full ethical approval from BU.
